Avenue and Parade. The Parade at Leamington is a broad thoroughfare through the heart of the town with a service of electric cars running down the centre. It is a popular rendezvous with visitors to this favourite watering-place, of which the value of the medicinal springs has been known from a very early date. They are mentioned by various authors of the 16th and 17th century, but it was not until the middle of the 18th century that their virtues became widely known.
